

Research Mission Updates

Margaret McNairy, MD Assistant Professor of Medicine, Co-Director of GIM Global Health Fellowship, was awarded an R01 grant for $3,181,945 for the period of 08/01/2018 – 06/30/2023 from the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute entitled “A Longitudinal Cohort Study to Evaluate Cardiovascular Risk Factors and Disease in Haiti.”

Laura Pinheiro, PhD Assistant Professor of Health Services Research in Medicine, was awarded a grant for $502,851 for the period of 9/20/2018 – 4/30/2021 from the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute as a Diversity Supplement to Dr. Lisa Kern’s R01 grant on “Healthcare Fragmentation and Cardiovascular Outcomes.”

Parag Goyal, MD Assistant Professor of Medicine, was awarded a grant for $200,000 from the American Heart Association for the period of 7/1/2018-6/30/2020 on his study, “Safety of Neurohormonal Antagonist Initiation among Older Adults Following a Heart Failure Hospitalization.” Dr. Goyal’s Pre-Career Award was renewed an additional year by Weill Department of Medicine for his study on, “Impact of Polypharmacy on Rehospitalization in Older Adults with Heart Failure.”

The General Internal Medicine (GIM) Researchers had their first annual retreat in July. The daylong retreat was successful in clarifying the groups’ diverse set of skills and knowledge and identifying GIM research priorities for short-term and long-term.

Education Mission Updates

With the new academic year in full swing, the Primary Care Clerkship leadership is working hard to reassess and revamp the didactic portion of the Clerkship. The team is collaborating with lecturers and session leaders to make didactic sessions more educationally valuable by adding interactive elements, using high yield preassigned readings and providing students with evidence based medicine management algorithms to serve as study aids for their final examination.

Through hard organizational work by the Clerkship Coordinator, Kathryn Zhu, BA and with positive feedback from students so far, they have refined the student experience in the emergency department by focusing on providing students with more clearly defined patient care roles and more continuity with individual attending preceptors. Similarly, they are collaborating with colleagues in Dermatology and other Primary Care specialty departments to improve the educational experience for primary care students at those clinical sites.

Cornell Center for Health Equity (CCHEq)

The Cornell Center for Health Equity (CCHEq) is delighted to announce the expansion of the Weill Cornell Health Services Research Training Program to include a Health Equity Research Training Fellowship funded through our new Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) sponsored Diversity Center of Excellence (CoE). Reception will take place on October 12th at 3:30pm in Belfer Research Building 204A/B & Skylight Lounge for Wine & Cheese! More details, click here.

Patient Activated Learning System (PALS)

Amanda Carmel, MD and her collaborators evaluated the impact of the Patient Activated Learning System (PALS) on improving knowledge acquisition, retention and medication decision-making among hypertensive adults. Dr. Carmel is currently submitting the manuscript describing the results of the pilot randomized controlled trial, which showed great promise for better knowledge acquisition for the PALS compared to WebMD.

Laura Gingras, MD Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine has a new role as Director of Content Development for the Patient Activated Learning System (PALS).

Visit palsforhealth.com to learn more about the system. We always welcome feedback!

Primary Care Innovation (PCI) Program

The Primary Care Innovation 2018 seed grant proposals are under review. The committee of review is scheduled to meet October 10th to make their decision. Stay tuned! Visit careinnovation.weill.cornell.edu for more information.
